The Fucecchio Marshes is the largest marshes of Italy and one of the largest of Europe. It is a hot spot of biodiversity with hundreds of bird species and a particular flora and landscape. The tour will touch the typical Tuscan countryside with historical heritage (like an ancient Villa of the Medici family) and will enter inside a rich woodland. Then we reach the most important harbour of the marshes and then we will enter in the wetland with the possibility to watch many birds inside the Natural Reserve. It's not a difficult trail and it is very flat. It's an interesting tour due to the continuous mixing of historical and natural issues.

The trail is almost completely on dirty road, with gravel and clay (there could be mud). The trail needs hiking boots, personal water and to be in good physical shape.
